TEACHING AND RESEARCH INTERESTS

My teaching and research interests are centrally located in the field of Public Health, but are transdisciplinary in nature, reflective of my training. The goal of my research is to prevent the onset of chronic diseases in order to achieve population-level health equity. Specifically, I examine the 1) policies and 2) environmental factors that influence physical activity and healthy eating among youth; and 3) investigate factors associated with the dissemination and implementation of evidence-based interventions to prevent chronic diseases. In my current role as an Evergreen Assistant Professor, I am situated within the College of Education, Counseling Psychology and Human Services Department, and affiliated with the Family and Human Services and Prevention Science programs. I am also a member of the Health Promotion and Obesity Prevention Initiative.

EDUCATIONAL RECORD

- 2016 Doctor of Philosophy completed at Washington University in St. Louis in May, 2016. Major area of study: Social Work with a Public Health focus, Dissertation title: The role of physical activity enjoyment in the pathways from social and physical environments to physical activity of early adolescent girls, Dissertation chair: Dr. Ross Brownson.
- 2009 Master of Public Health completed at St. Louis University in May, 2009 in Behavioral Science and Health Education.
- 2005 Bachelor of Science completed at Santa Clara University in March, 2005 in Sociology and Spanish Studies.

EMPLOYMENT HISTORY

- 2016-present Evergreen Assistant Professor, Counseling Psychology and Human Services, College of Education, University of Oregon, Eugene, OR

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

- 2016-present Instructor, Family and Human Services and Prevention Science programs, College of Education, University of Oregon
